

Citing Images

Any image that is not an original creation of the author is a borrowed idea and should be cited as to its source. You must tell where the image came from. There is an acceptable way of achieving this:

- Provide a caption under the image itself, listing the author, title, and source of the image.

Example from website:

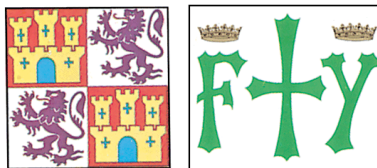

How Stuff works, Brain, <http://static.howstuffworks.com/gif/brain-intro.gif>

Example from Media Files:

Ocean flats, shallow tropical. Paul Fuqua. 2003.
unitedstreaming. 6 December 2006
<<http://www.unitedstreaming.com/>>

Example from Book:

Flags Carried by Columbus, World Book Illustrations